RE: Netflix Privacy Litigation, No. 5:11-cv-00379-EJD

Members of the Court:

I, Richard E. Carr, do hereby object to this settlement on the grounds that the lawyers represented only themselves and not their clients.

Those of us who had our privacy violated receive nothing but the lawyers are getting a tremendous amount of money, both in fees and to contribute to their favorite charities.

No charity had it's personal information sold or given away, it was the people who were used by Netflix, paying for movies and then having their personal information sold.

Thus the end result is a group of lawyers get 2.5 million dollars (minimum) and those of us who were violated and our information sold get nothing.

This is neither equity nor justice, just a money grab by a group of lawyers.

My suggested resolution is as follows:

1. The lawyers get only 1 million dollars.
2. The remaining 8 million is evenly divided among those who were violated.
